WHAT DO CC'S DO?

Conservation commissions are local conservation volunteers who work to study and protect natural resources.

Conservation commissions are very active in New Hampshire!

These active volunteers are studying natural resources and developing long-term plans and strategies for the protection of important places, they are providing educational programs & hikes, they are working to permanently protect land, they are educating the public about renewable energy, they are managing city and town lands for timber production, recreation and wildlife, they are researching the latest tools and advising other boards on the importance of the town's natural resources, they are able to work with the state's Department of Environmental Services to provide local comment on wetland permits.

New Business: tour of waste water treatment facility?

Discuss the future of a new trail – invite Dan Newton to speak – see NHACC newsletter of May 16, 2018 – planning, maintaining public trails
